HOW TO FIND YOUR PERFECT RENTAL

Find a place to live that you can love

Believe it or not, we are in the busiest season of the year to find a rental. May to late August is usually the height of rental demand and can make it more difficult to find and procure the perfect (for you) place to live. Here are some tips to help:

Timing is Everything

Start looking for your place at least a month ahead of when you need to move in. This will give you enough time to check out the market and chase a few rabbit trails, if necessary.

Be Prepared

When you find an apartment or house, there is still a bit of a process to apply and be approved. Have your information organized in advance so that you can expedite the process. You will need to gather the following: needed information for a credit check, references, pay stubs, letter of employment and tax returns or recent bank statements. If you really want to get a jump, run a credit check yourself to make sure that you are qualified. It is generally recommended that your rent should not exceed 20-30% of your income.

Tenant Talk

Talk to previous tenants whenever possible. This will allow you to get a stronger feel for the landlord, expenses (utilities, transportation, etc.) and amenities. Ask questions about the landlord's interactions with them, response time to maintenance and respect of privacy.

Walk the Talk

Make sure you do a walk through before signing a lease. Test out everything you see, including outlets, toilets, taps, appliances and lights. Look for any signs of insect or rodent issues in cupboards and storage spaces. Look for any damage to walls and floors, taking pictures to ensure you won't be held liable. Pay particular attention to any water damage which can lead to rot or mould.
